Welcome and thank you for your participation. The purpose of this survey is to evaluate the quality and sensitivity of various responses/comments providing emotional support to posts posted on anonymous online forums.

On each page, you will read a post and several response options. Your task is to read carefully and select the best response based on two separately assessed criteria: Emotional Support and Cultural Awareness.

Please read the guidelines below before beginning your assessment:

CRITERION 1: Emotional Supportiveness. What is an emotional support message? It is communication intended to provide comfort, affirmation, and understanding to someone experiencing stress or emotional difficulties. This message may also include helpful advice.

What are the characteristics of a GOOD emotional support message?

The response demonstrates genuine understanding of the writer's emotions and conveys timely concern.

The response offers effective advice and practical steps tailored to the writer's problem.

CRITERION 2: Cultural Awareness What is a culturally sensitive support message? Communication that recognizes, acknowledges, and appropriately responds to cultural differences or specific cultural elements (such as context, values, norms, or local knowledge) present in the story. The message is tailored so that the writer feels understood and their cultural background is respected.

What are the characteristics of a GOOD culturally sensitive support message?

The response reflects knowledge of the writer's culture and demonstrates an understanding of the sociopolitical systems (community/family rules) that influence the writer's story.

The response is able to identify and position the root of the problem within the appropriate cultural context.

Additional Notes for Assessors: Focus on the content of the message, the level of empathy, and the quality of the solutions offered. Ignore differences in language style, length, or writing format for each response option. Choose the response that you feel most humanizing and helpful to the writer.
